Speaker

Kim Moore

Kim was born and raised in Dallas, TX. When she was a child, her family moved to Germany as missionaries. During her formative years, she was immersed in the German language and culture, a culture she came to think of as home. As a long-term resident of both the United States and Germany, Kim has often felt caught between two cultures. This has often resulted in a sense of identity disorientation. Over the years, God has used this sense of displacement to create in her a strong sense of her citizenship in heaven and a deep rootedness in her identity as His child.

Kim returned to the states to attend Cairn University, majoring in Biblical Studies. There, Kim met Jeremy Moore, whom she eventually married. Kim and Jeremy moved to NJ, where Jeremy is a pastor at South Ridge Community Church, in Clinton. Kim and Jeremy have 5 children: Emily (18), Kaia (15), Julia (13), Leah (11), and Hudson (1).

She is a pastor's wife, a homeschool mom, and a ministry leader. In addition to supporting Jeremy's ministry, Kim has served at South Ridge as a mentor to teens and young adults, on oversight teams for small groups and missions, on the Prayer Team, and currently leads two different Bible studies for women.

Kim is an advocate for those without a voice, especially children. She loves the outdoors, singing, cooking, documentaries, reading, connecting with friends in a real and honest way, and everything that is good and beautiful. She is passionate about seeing women fall in love with Jesus and experience healing and freedom through His Spirit.
